SUBJECT: APPOINTMENT OF AN ADDITIONAL SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT.

1. With the advent of Responsible Government in October 1947, a new era in administration may be said to have begun. Ever since, the tempo of work has increased by leaps and bounds. ~~[illegible]~~ There has been a persistent demand on all hands-by the public, legislators and the Government-for quick disposal of work. With the inauguration of the new Constitution, questions of complexity and a variety of problems have arisen. Financial integration and the extension of the Indian Administrative Service and Indian Police Service Schemes have brought, and are bringing in their train, a number of new questions demanding urgent attention and detailed study. The following are some of the items of work which have added to the work:

a) Taking over of all India Arms Licenses work;

b) India Pakistan Permit System;

c) Evacuee Property Work;

d) Pass Port Work;

e) Visas and stay permits for foreigners;

f) Correspondence consequent on introduction of new Constitution and Federal Financial Integration;

g) Routing of all important correspondence with Government of India through Chief Secretary;

h) Correspondence regarding Palace and Palace matters;

i) Tour programme of His Highness the Maharaja;

j) Integration regarding Indian Administrative Services and Indian Police Services;

k) Special work like Race Club, etc.

2. These items though small in themselves add a great deal to the total work and occupy a good deal of time making it quite impossible for the Chief Secretary to complete the day's work without working overtime and at all odd hours and on holidays without rest or leisure. As a result of all this, the Chief Secretary's work has become more and more burdensome, responsible and has assumed vast proportions. Seasonal work relating to the Legislative Assembly, business relating to the Council, Conferences and Committee Work, the visits of distinguished personages etc, are always throwing the normal work out of gear.

3. While there is no doubt that the existing work has definitely increased in volume and intensity, it may be equally definitely stated that the work hereafter is likely to be even more strenuous than it was before.

4. In the circumstances, it is suggested that the existing number of Secretaries to Government may be increased by one and that the Additional Secretary may be delegated with certain items of work now being done by the Chief Secretary. He may also be delegated with such other items of work as may be found necessary to transfer from other Secretaries.

5. The Additional Secretary will be in complete charge of the establishment of the General and Revenue Secretariat, and all papers relating to General & Revenue Secretariat Establishment which are now being dealt with by the Chief Secretary will be dealt with by him, including those of allied offices, Stores, Ministers' Establishments, etc. He will also be in charge of the Guests' arrangements and the Guest Houses which are now attended to by the Secretary, Food and Agriculture Departments.

6. He will deal, in addition, for the time being, with Police and Military.

7. At a rough estimate, this proposal would result in
